11 October 2026 Poor · 2 stars

The prior GP adviced for a face to face appointment after being away from work for a while A face to face appointment was selected and any GP option selected as any other day wasn t suitable On the day I met a GP whom I have never spoken to before so wanted to give a background from the first initial sick note which was a few months ago so there is some context from then until now Throughout the appointment I didn t feel heard and felt like extremely and it wasn t there wasn t any conversation to understand my current situation It was either black or white based on the GP s experience I felt I had to fight for my life to be heard I didn t feel safe and started to feel anxious throughout the call Eventually the sicknote was extended but the notes were not given in a context Have a more friendly attitude and ensure the patient feel safe and let them speak Don t interrupt

The doctor was very good and overall I was very pleased with the care I received However I was not pleased with my experience at reception On my last two visits I found it very difficult to hear the receptionists because they spoke extremely quietly When giving my date of birth I had to repeat it several times before I was understood I would appreciate it if reception staff could be encouraged to speak a little louder and more clearly particularly as some patients may have difficulty hearing through the reception screen Alternatively perhaps a microphone or another system could be provided to make communication easier Unfortunately this has been particularly frustrating on my last two visits and I hope something can be done to improve communication at reception I would appreciate it if reception staff could be encouraged to speak a little louder and more clearly particularly as some patients may have difficulty hearing through the reception screen Alternatively perhaps a microphone or another system could be provided to make communication easier Unfortunately this has been particularly frustrating on my last two visits and I hope something can be done to improve communication at reception
